Walker Memorial Committee

By T. F. Bundy '24

Walker Memorial was given by the late Charles W. Walker, M. E. Tech., Class of '19, one of the Institute's greatest benefactors. Though his passing is mourned, his name will live on in the building which bears his name. The memorial was intended to be a study and memorizing room, but the faculty saw fit to make it part of the building named after him. Walker Memorial is now a part of the Institute's library, and it is a fitting place for the students to study and prepare for their various classes. The building is designed to be a place of quiet and study, and it is equipped with all the necessary amenities for a library. The walls are adorned with bookshelves and reading materials, and the atmosphere is one of calm and focus. The building is open to all students, and it is a place where they can come to study and prepare for their classes. The building is a fitting tribute to Charles W. Walker, and it is a place where students can come to remember him and his contributions to the Institute.
