CHEM DEPARTMENT WILL GIVE PRIZE FOR MODEL

Competition Open to Organic Chemistry Students

The awarding of prizes for the best constructed models of carbon molecules is contemplated by Professor F. J. Moore in order to stimulate more interest and eventually more students in the subject of Organic Chemistry. Professor Moore is planning to reward the most perfect models with something more material than a good mark. The prizes will probably consist of books on organic chemistry.

Dr. Thomas E. Hunt has now some models of carbon molecules that he plans to construct over the coming semester. They do not have to be made from any defaults materials or be of a given design. Each model, glass, and wire are some of the best materials for this purpose according to Professor Moore. One mass has made some very good models out of bicycle spokes alone.

The competition is open only to the one taking organic chemistry, THI, with the donor, next term. He believes that a proper understanding of the actual structure of molecules is difficult to obtain from the descriptions and pictures presented in text books. A much deeper idea can be had from a figure occurring more than one class. Men not directly connected with the course will be asked to serve as judges.

From The SPORTS DESK

Cecil Haines is not only a very clever coach of the soccer team but he is also an expert boatbuilder. Under his supervision, the students at the boatbuilding up at the boathouse should soon be able to have better boats.
