Matches at Woodland Golf Club Prove Disastrous for Technology

In the Harvard-MIivation varsity golf match (Saturday afternoon the Harvard and Tech teams played 18 holes each, and the Tech team was victorious by a score of 54-44). The outcome of the match has been awaited with great interest. The Harvard team has been doing well recently, and it was expected that the Tech team would have its work cut out to win. The match was played on the Woodland Golf Club, which is considered one of the best in the area. The weather was cloudy and cool, which helped to condition the course for play. The Harvard team, led by Captain Edward Lee, played well, making only one bogey on the course. The Tech team, under the leadership of Captain William Parker, played even better, making only one bogey and one double bogey on the course. The match was a close one, with both teams finishing with a score of 4-under-par. The Harvard team emerged the victors, however, with a score of 54-44. The match was a great victory for the Harvard team, which has been struggling to improve its performance recently. The Tech team, on the other hand, has been doing well, and this victory was a great boost to its morale. The Harvard team will look to continue its winning streak in future matches, while the Tech team will work to improve its performance and compete against the best teams in the area.
