Alexander speaks at final lecture on labor problem

Managing Director of Industrial Conference Board Speaks in 10-290 Today

Labor relations expert

Summaries arguments given by representatives of both sides of question

Today's labor historian will be heard in the afternoon lecture by Mr. E. F. Stevens '27, director of the Industrial Conference Board, and will be held in room 10-290. Mr. Stevens will give the views of rate of capital and labor in working out social and industrial labor conditions and endeavor to place the economic and social problem of industry in its proper perspective. He will attempt to clarify the economic and social factors responsible for labor unrest, to analyze the role of the labor unions, and to bring out the necessity of mutual understanding between labor and management.

NEW ELECTORAL SYSTEM ADOPTED

Majority Vote Assured in All Future Class Elections by New Method

Acceptance of the Preferential System for electing class officers was the order of the day at the last meeting of the Institute Committee of 1926 held yesterday afternoon in the first floor room of the Junior Building. The action was taken at the recommendation of the Committee on Labor Relations and is expected to be carried into effect in the junior elections to be held next week.

Majority Must Be Assured

Due to the failure, in many cases, of the old form of voting to elect a majority by a majority vote, the Preferential System has been adopted which, in its essentials, provides that a class shall choose its officers by a majority vote. It is said that the new system will be of great benefit to the junior class and much to increase the efficiency of the officers.

The new system in operation will be as follows: The class is divided into two groups, the one representing the employers and the other the employees. Both groups are divided into voting sections in the order of the classes of the senior, the junior, and the freshman. The members of each of these two groups will vote for the officers of the class in order of the classes of the senior, the junior, and the freshman, and the returning officers will be elected by a majority vote, the members of the class voting in proportion to their ability to vote, the members of the class voting in proportion to their ability to vote.

C.O. STAFF ARTILLERY TO FIRE 12 INCH GUN

R. C. O. staffs of the Coast Artillery Unit will practice firing 12 inch guns at Fort Warren tomorrow morning. For the sake of regularity, the regular teams only will be allowed to fire. The other teams will play the regular teams to keep them sharp. The regular teams will be allowed only 24 rounds each. The work will begin by 9 A.M. with the firing of the 24 rounds. The teams will then be dismissed and the regular teams will go to the Armory to practice. The regular teams will return to the Armory at 1 P.M. for the finishing of the day's work. The regular teams will be allowed only 24 rounds each, the practice being for the regular teams only.

Artillerymen are to be present on time.