STOLEN GOODS

We know that in every large body of men there are bound to be a few who are a little careless and up to get together which and which is thine. Any one is apt to stray from the path of virtue to the path of vice forgetting to act in the right way. Some time like that, but we did not know that we had among us one who would commit the offense, and when the matter came to the activity offices in Walker. That is about as low as possible.
