JAZZ BAND IS HIT OF JOINT CONCERT

Big Crowd Hears Technology and Dartmouth Clubs

Dartmouth and Technology put on a musical contest at the Hotel Statler Saturday evening; in fact, one of the tastiest musical engagements ever attempted in this city. The Bacchus Band of Dartmouth College, led by the President, Mr. E. R. Fish, and the Blueblowers of Technology placed in exhibition before two thousand spectators, the latter being a mixture of club members and the large contingent of Dartmouth's home-town friends, who were in New York for the New England Athletic Games. The Bacchus Band provided the selection which showed the most variety and came nearer together.

Blueblowers, on the other hand, succeeded in giving a good musical performance, which was well received by the large number of students present. The program for the evening was a success, and the mixed audience enjoyed the music immensely. The Bacchus Band had the advantage of being able to play longer, and it showed in their performance.

Although the saxophone quartet, which was the number 20 selection and the most difficult of the entire program, was the one that caused the greatest amount of applause, the selection that brought the most interest was number 16. This piece was a selection from the opera "La Boheme," and it was played with great precision and feeling.

The last selection of the evening was number 18, "The Star-Spangled Banner," which was played with great skill and enthusiasm.

The Blueblowers ended their program with number 30, "The Star-Spangled Banner," which was played with great skill and enthusiasm.

Wave of Dishonesty at Institute Has Reached a Peak, Says Hudson

Dishonesty at Technology in various forms has reached an all-time high, according to Professor H. E. Hudson, head of the Department of Electrical Engineering.

"In recent years, we have seen a steady increase in the number of cases of dishonesty at the institute," said Professor Hudson. "This year, however, has been marked by a particularly high incidence of dishonesty."

"The causes of this increase," he continued, "are to be found in the economic climate of the country, the high cost of living, and the general atmosphere of anxiety that has prevailed in recent years."
