Russell Captures Tennis Title With Decisive Win
At Longwood Wednesday

Russell played the same kind of cool, calculated tennis that he displayed in his victory over Marshall of Williams, last spring at Cambridge. He continually put on the ball his cunning cross-court and backhand stroke that is the other player's principal weakness. The low不变ing he Russell put on the ball caused Osgood to make too many unforced errors.

He was allowed only two set points, while Russell served out nine set points to win the match.
