Scene at the Alumni Banquet in Mechanics’ Hall Tonight

An architect’s picture of what Mechanics Hall will look like tonight when 2000 alumni and their guests assemble there. The handsome young man in the front is distributor of the much heralded prizes. Decorations conceived by Frank A. Bowser Jr., architect of Boston.

Mechanics’ Hall Jamboree Tonight

To Be Largest Of Boston Dinners

With Mechanics’ Hall filled to capacity tonight in the biggest lawn dinner ever held in Boston, the Jamboree Dinner provides to be the largest attended event of the Reunion. Entertainment and dinner on the best has been promised by Carl W. Gramm ’09, Chairman of the Jamboree, while the entire world will not be kept in the dark as nine radio stations will be connected simultaneously to broadcast to the entire country. Prices totaling $25,000 will be given away.

All of the seats will have "old boy" row sight seeing facilities thus giving everyone in the hall a glimpse of what is going on. A unique feature of this dinner is that there will be very little speaking. To take the place of the usual speaking which according to the committee, causes the sufferers to go to sleep, there will be entertainment furnished by Drakes’ orchestra and, and other professional entertainers on the first order, including songs from the Greenwich Village Follets.

Will Broadcast Program

The dinner will be entirely broadcast by radio from many stations. Due to A. W. Drake ’95, of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, special arrangements have been made to connect the stations WWJ, WEEI, WGR, WFI, WEAR, WOC, WCOO, WWJ, and WSAI with the announcements at Mechanics Hall so that practically the whole country will be able to listen in on the Jamboree.

This brings to mind the Reunion Dinner of 1916 when, on the evening of June 14, in Symphony Hall, the Telephone system of the entire country was tied up so that any Telephonist ever might listen to the program.
