Professor Rogers and Tucker Consider Their College's Record of Great Value

OPPORTUNITY EXCELLENT

"A man who is connected with the work at Harvard has been asked by a number of people, who are interested in the University, if it is true that Harvard students are unhappy. This is not true," said Professor H. H. Rogers, in addressing the students on the topic of "Harvard's Record of Great Value.""The work at Harvard is excellent and the opportunities are many," he added.

Professor W. G. Tucker, who is also a member of the faculty, agreed with Professor Rogers and added: "Harvard is a great institution and its students are capable of achieving great things."
