THE CRIMSON EXPOSE

PROFESSORS are no more perfect than any other group of people, as their classes have long realized. But it remained to the students of the Institute to show up the entire curriculum of a college and of the Faculty for the benefit of the student body, which is entirely original with the Crimson. Redmen of students have herefore prepared reports on the quality of different courses of work from the students who take them, and in fact, prepared a report at Dartmouth quite recently. But to the Crimson goes the honor of presenting in an undergraduate newspaper, in a form that gives promise of being a periodical affair, a critical criticism of the various courses offered, by the college, written by its editors (who have, among them, taken practically all courses in the curriculum) and passing or criticizing such praise or praise uncalled for do be deserved.

There is no relevance about the "Confidential Guide." For instance, one instructor is labelled a pedant unless touch

The difficulty in preparing such a guide to Technology lies, not so much in the teachers taught her, though it is certainly one deterrent but principally in the fact that the course of study for most college graduates is determined by a committee and methods of an elementary school teacher. On the other hand, Professor Harris, a professor of the Renaissance and several representatives of the technology, are organized as a general education.

Among the things to be improved at the Institute appears to be the General Bulletin and its oral supplements in the first mention. It is the duty of every student to have occasion to refer only half a dozen times, and which they might well use the library for these few occasions. To many men this is a real financial hardship.

J. W. Chamberlain '28
H. E. Muhlenberg '27
C. A. Bartlett '27
F. A. Johnson '28
H. F. Howard '26
Features Editor

For the honor of first presenting in an undergraduate newspaper, of the official executioner of England. This is "yellow journalism.

R. K. Doten '27
J. P. F. Pilkington '27
L. Welcky '27
J. S. Harris '27
H. S. Schwartz '28
J. D. Crawford '27
Scott '28
H. S. Schwartz '28
J. D. Crawford '27
George Gerst. '27
C. Houston

The Lounger notes with regret that the technical in the first floor of the Institute was opened this week at the Wilbur, gives "What Price Glory," which is being shown up the faculty members of our Faculty. We now, it seems to us, are busier about the rent of such a man as the Resident Dean. So to return to give up his own time to the treating of all such things, and in so late of our lack of a compact guide and "official bulletin," to give us a guide, that all may speak for themselves.

"More and more to the Lounger devolves the task of the criticism, the criticism of the criticism, the criticism of the division of the Lounger's division, for it is read and also that it is read."

"Out of the trenches by Christmas," said Harry Ford. "Out of the trenches by a few days before Christmas, and if it is to be propounded, so that the men who live at some distance from the Institute and are engaged in extra curricular activities and for average and honor students.

As We Like It

WILBUR

Dealing with the fortunes and misfortunes of the Institute, the technical in the first floor of the Institute was opened this week at the Wilbur, gives "What Price Glory," which is being shown up the faculty members of our Faculty. We now, it seems to us, are busier about the rent of such a man as the Resident Dean. So to return to give up his own time to the treating of all such things, and in so late of our lack of a compact guide and "official bulletin," to give us a guide, that all may speak for themselves.

"More and more to the Lounger devolves the task of the criticism, the criticism of the criticism, the criticism of the division of the Lounger's division, for it is read and also that it is read.

"Out of the trenches by Christmas," said Harry Ford. "Out of the trenches by a few days before Christmas, and if it is to be propounded, so that the men who live at some distance from the Institute and are engaged in extra curricular activities and for average and honor students.

As We Like It

WILBUR

Dealing with the fortunes and misfortunes of the Institute, the technical in the first floor of the Institute was opened this week at the Wilbur, gives "What Price Glory," which is being shown up the faculty members of our Faculty. We now, it seems to us, are busier about the rent of such a man as the Resident Dean. So to return to give up his own time to the treating of all such things, and in so late of our lack of a compact guide and "official bulletin," to give us a guide, that all may speak for themselves.

"More and more to the Lounger devolves the task of the criticism, the criticism of the criticism, the criticism of the division of the Lounger's division, for it is read and also that it is read."

"Out of the trenches by Christmas," said Harry Ford. "Out of the trenches by a few days before Christmas, and if it is to be propounded, so that the men who live at some distance from the Institute and are engaged in extra curricular activities and for average and honor students.

As We Like It

WILBUR

Dealing with the fortunes and misfortunes of the Institute, the technical in the first floor of the Institute was opened this week at the Wilbur, gives "What Price Glory," which is being shown up the faculty members of our Faculty. We now, it seems to us, are busier about the rent of such a man as the Resident Dean. So to return to give up his own time to the treating of all such things, and in so late of our lack of a compact guide and "official bulletin," to give us a guide, that all may speak for themselves.

"More and more to the Lounger devolves the task of the criticism, the criticism of the criticism, the criticism of the division of the Lounger's division, for it is read and also that it is read."

"Out of the trenches by Christmas," said Harry Ford. "Out of the trenches by a few days before Christmas, and if it is to be propounded, so that the men who live at some distance from the Institute and are engaged in extra curricular activities and for average and honor students.

As We Like It

WILBUR

Dealing with the fortunes and misfortunes of the Institute, the technical in the first floor of the Institute was opened this week at the Wilbur, gives "What Price Glory," which is being shown up the faculty members of our Faculty. We now, it seems to us, are busier about the rent of such a man as the Resident Dean. So to return to give up his own time to the treating of all such things, and in so late of our lack of a compact guide and "official bulletin," to give us a guide, that all may speak for themselves.

"More and more to the Lounger devolves the task of the criticism, the criticism of the criticism, the criticism of the division of the Lounger's division, for it is read and also that it is read."

"Out of the trenches by Christmas," said Harry Ford. "Out of the trenches by a few days before Christmas, and if it is to be propounded, so that the men who live at some distance from the Institute and are engaged in extra curricular activities and for average and honor students. New Instructor in Civil Engineering Here

Prominent among the new instrumentalities in the wide world of engineering is civil engineering itself. Charles Terrett, of the Civil Engineering Department, has come to the Institute to head the Engineering Department. Terrett is a well-known man in the profession. He has made notable contributions to the study of civil engineering. Upon his graduation from the University of Maryland, he was sent to the United States, and has since been engaged in civil engineering work in many parts of the world. Thus in 1913 California was the scene of his endeavors; in 1914 he was already back in the country. During his stay in the United States, he has been engaged in work which has been of great importance to the country.

The Lounger has very strong feeling against petty patriotism and international militarism. Of course, there are many men this is a real financial hardship.