INTERCOLLEGIATE PERIODICALS

WITH the appearance of several commercial periodicals devoted to campus interests, it is natural to ask what use may be made of the news contained in such journals? One of the chief values of the periodicals lies in their constructive articles. It contains on subjects of current interest and provides articles that are not being held to interest the student.

SINCE the opening of the term a great deal of space has been devoted to the election of class officers, the program column to the discussion of student interest in current events. The student body of the institution is much interested in such activities in the country. These comments are brought into closer contact. This is the chief purpose of such a periodical.

THE COMING STUDENT CONFERENCE

As We Like It

The New Park

Monday night saw the opening of "As We Like It" in the new Patricia Theater. Miss Virginia Parkinson, "The School for Scandal," is in full swing. The play has been a sensation and the audience has been enthusiastic. The play is well known and is popular with the students.

The Cardinal

The Cardinal, a publication of the New England Catholic University, has been suspended for a week pending an investigation. The suspension was ordered by the editor-in-chief.

FREAK COLLEGE CLUBS ARE THE FASHION NOW

March 25

In his story of Sherlock Holmes the young man who seeks out the truth in a world of intrigue and deception, the author has written a masterful story. The story is particularly interesting to the student who is seeking to understand the workings of the world.
