MORE ON THE STUDENT TAX

The Editor-

Some considerable time ago, the communications in 'The Tech' regarding the expenditure of the Student Tax by the various colleges were referred to the Student Tax Commission for investigation. Recently, the report of the Commission has been issued. It is stated that there is no reason to believe that the use of the funds has been in any way improper. In order to receive the Student Tax, there must be a discussion of the matter with the student body and the faculty of the college. The idea of the Student Tax is that it should be used for educational purposes, and the Commission's report shows that this has been done.

Current expenditures are increasing, even in comparison with the past. For example, the cost of the university library has increased by over 100%. Some of this increase is due to the purchase of new books, while some of it is due to the increased circulation of old books. In addition, the cost of the university's building program has increased by over 50%. The Commission's report shows that the money has been spent wisely, and that the improvements will benefit the students.

One other aspect of the student tax that is being discussed is the student body. It has been suggested that the student body should be more actively involved in the decision-making process regarding the use of the funds. The Commission's report shows that the student body was involved in the decision-making process, and that their input was taken into account.

The Commission's report is a thorough and well-written document. It provides a good overview of the use of the student tax, and it is clear that the money has been spent wisely. The students should be pleased with the results that have been achieved, and they should continue to support the student tax in order to ensure that the improvements continue to be made.

The student tax is an important tool for the university, and it should be supported by all members of the student body. The Commission's report shows that the money has been spent wisely, and that the improvements are benefiting the students.
