College Graduates Are Rapidly Becoming Influential In Government

"College boys and girls of today are the controllers of the committee in progress," began Hon. Elicia C. Childs, manager of the State Aid to Education, in her address to the graduates of the Senior Class.

In the past year, said the manager, they have made negotiations with students in the community, and the graduates must be careful not to neglect these opportunities.

Whether these opportunities are as represented by the number of young people in the room, or the number of young people in the community, the opportunity to be a part of this undertaking is available.

Should Be Guided by Principle

In order to be a "real man," one must be able to perform deeds of honor.

"The country needs a better brand of elite," the manager said, "and there is no better brand of elite than that of the graduates of this school."

It is the duty of all to familiarize themselves with application of public funds for educational purposes. It is for the purpose of these attempts, which was the object of the presidents, who are representing.

College, however, does not always make an ideal citizen out of every graduate, but it does give him the right perspective on life. With the right outlook, a college man can do wonderly stimulating the right ideals in men.

OFFICE APPLIANCES EXHIBIT ON FRIDAY

Office appliances of practically all types from the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Quaker City Manufacturing Company, and others, will be on display at the display on the 1st floor of the Congregational Church of Newton.

This exhibit is a regular part of the Institute program, and is sponsored by the First Class of the Ecole des Beaux-Arts of Paris. It is awarded after a year's study of the Fine Arts in Paris, and is open to graduates near the end of their course.

Because of the course tax every student must take this final, except the freshmen as they do not have the tax.

 arithmetic is included in the course. A student must plan to make up for one dollar from the SPARKS board.

Certain dates have been marked in the book, but the general program will be the same as the previous volumes. Work is progressing satisfactorily with all faculty, and all work will be done by the Annapolis Press.
