Concerning Demise of the Lampoon

Harvard Publications Engage
In Annual Resumption
Of Hostilities

The recent annual outbreak of hos-tilities between the Lampoon and the Harvard Crimson, which started when the Lampoon placed an insinuation on the part of the Lampoon's columns that the Crimson had been defeated, was so recently met by the Crim-son's in such a manner that a good proportion of the student body of the two student papers of Boston were led to believe that the Lampoon was really going out of business. This is not the case, however, because of the intensity of his reply in the Harvard Crimson.

FRANK WEBSTER

Report

The lampoonz maturely agree to dis-solve. This year was the Lampoon's last issue, and the Assembly in force the night before Saint Pal-mar's Day. Parthey's dog paraded down to the Crimson build- ing, and the result was that the building with orange-colored paper. After much patching up of paper, Lampy's men managed to get hold of the next edition, which was hastily folded up and put away forever into the lampoonz vaults.
