Transcript Compares Penalties Given To Harvard and Technology 'Rioters'

Saturday, the following account reappeared in the Transcript under the following five headlines:

"Harvard's Punishment And Tech's"

"Fists plus jellies containing hexane..."

"Appeals..."

"On the other hand, Judge Grant..."

"What about the conduct of the protesters?"

Fists plus jellies containing hexane were thrown at some twelve to fifteen students, who were handled by the authorities of the Harvards, who were handled by the protesters, who were handled by the authorities of the Tech. As a consequence, Gordon Grant, who is perhaps the greatest living American jurist, has done it again. He has done it with the same methods, the same skill, the same justice, the same wisdom, which the Tech characteristically displayed in its dispatch of the matter. The only question is, 'What about the conduct of the protesters?' This is a question which has been in the minds of all of us who have been following this case, and it will be answered by the court if it is called to that task. It is a question which has been in the minds of all of us who have been following this case, and it will be answered by the court if it is called to that task.
