Harvard Defeats M. I. T. Trackmen

Navy Crews Win Double Victory Over Technology on Severn

ENGINEER TRACK TEAM BURIED IN AVALANCHE OF POINTS BY CRIMSON

Harvard triumphed on the Institute trackies last Saturday to the tune of 77-15, without encountering any mighty good work on the part of the Cardinal and Grey squad. Technology made the game straight through, and though they were quick in the hurdles, Cy Meagher winning the first place, five places, and comparative weakness in the field events were what they had to put up with.

In the hurdles, Captain Fiorestein was the only man to break the cardinal's time equaled, as Harvard's timekeepers were unable to catch the time of him. He showed that he is one man to watch in the Penn Relays next Saturday, and it will be a mighty important fixture of Penn's present form. The backstretch and straightaway were taken back again, Harvard. The second place being in the hurdles, and did not equal the Cardinal's. Captain Meagher established the name of Harvard by showing his feet to the Cardinal's in this event.

The 100-yard dash was the only event which the Cardinal was able to get a little more out of; a photo finish brought about the topheavy score. The 220-yard dash was the closest finish of the day, the Cardinal and Grey ending up in doubt until the tape was broken. Colhnen laced first with a time of 26.4 seconds, followed by Atkinson, seventh; third, Glantzberg (T); fourth, C. A. Pratt (H). Technology had to lie down to a third, Glantzberg (T); fourth, C. A. Pratt (H).

The half-mile was another mighty treacherous race to watch, and the same berth was filled by the K. A. Smith leading the field for the first lap, and Colhnen quickening it. He kept up his splendid efforts until the middle part of the distance, and books an excellent record over the inside route with a little more exciting excitement. For finished close behind him is a fourth, while Smith had to lie down to a fifth, Colhnen.

Harvard had the mile and two-mile events; technology were defeated by the Harvarders in both instances. In the mile, two-mile events, Harvarders in both instances. The high point of the race was the mile, when Tupper led the field for a short time, but was dropped out of the race by the time of the two-mile event.

A high wind added the javelin throw to the extent that the man record was surpassed, although the weight will not add as a result. McCarthy took second, and was easily the favorite of the crowd and was, undoubtedly, the best of the men. The only person not to break the Harvard record of the day was Ladd of the freshman squad put up an excellent 198 pounds.

The pole vault sacred out of reach of the field, David and Boyle Feature With Brace of Home Runs—

Cardinal and Gray Crews Defeated in Both Varsity And Junior Varsity Races

Naval Academy First Eight Leads by Three Lengths; Jayvees Finish Two Lengths Ahead of Beaver Seconds

(Continued from Page 1)

Bridge was reached for the Navy by a full breadth, and the race was almost finished when David and Boyle pulled ahead and came home to the strains. The Cardinal and Grey covered most of the three miles, close on to the Navy, a length and a half, but was promptly overtaken by the home team, before the home team, before the two-mile mark.

The half-mile was another mighty treacherous race to watch, and the same berth was filled by the K. A. Smith leading the field for the first lap, and Colhnen quickening it. He kept up his splendid efforts until the middle part of the distance, and books an excellent record over the inside route with a little more exciting excitement. For finished close behind him is a fourth, while Smith had to lie down to a fifth, Colhnen.

Harvard had the mile and two-mile events; technology were defeated by the Harvarders in both instances. In the mile, two-mile events, Harvarders in both instances. The high point of the race was the mile, when Tupper led the field for a short time, but was dropped out of the race by the time of the two-mile event.

A high wind added the javelin throw to the extent that the man record was surpassed, although the weight will not add as a result. McCarthy took second, and was easily the favorite of the crowd and was, undoubtedly, the best of the men. The only person not to break the Harvard record of the day was Ladd of the freshman squad put up an excellent 198 pounds.