COLUMBIA STUDENT SAYS COLLEGE MEN ARE NOT NEUROTIC

CLAIMS MOVIES, AUTHORS AND PRESS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR AGITATION

(From New York Evening Post)

Rounding out the cultural anti-war movement, last week was a demonstration by students of Columbia University in support of the Multinational Peace Corps. At a meeting of the student group, the issue of peace was discussed, and the students agreed to support the Multinational Peace Corps in their efforts to promote world peace. The students also discussed the role of the press and movies in contributing to the agitation among college students, and they stressed the importance of educating the public about the dangers of war.

TECHNIQUE BOARD OPENS COMPETITION

A competition, leading to the post of Features Editor of the Student, will begin Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. It was announced by the FeaturesEditor that it will open with a meeting, at which the students will be instructed in the duties connected with the office, and will be examined during the following week. Although a larger number of applicants for the office were expected, all who are interested are invited to attend.

IN RE light of the recent wave of student suicides, the above statement was made by the Features Editor. He expressed the hope that the competition would prove to be a healing influence, inasmuch as it is the duty of the Features Editor to arrange the program for the evening, and it was announced that the program will be designed to appeal to the general public.

NEW T. C. A. CABINET HOLDS FIRST MEETING

No decision on its next year's budget was reached by the Cabinet of the Student Christian Association at its first meeting since the new officers took charge, but there was much discussion about it. It was decided that the appropriation for some departments must be increased, and that new funds must be obtained. William H. Cocks, Jr. '29 and Walter M. Powers '20 were elected representatives to the Executive Committee, in line with the new amendment to its constitution, and H. C. J. Ross '29 was elected representative to the New England Field Council. It was also decided that the annual report should be mimeographed and that the Executive Committee should decide upon the amount to be given to the Northern Student Service Conference.

In answer, and head of the Murray Petrov- ing Company. Invitations were sent to all students graduate and now at the Institute or at Harvard. Over a hundred of these attended, and it was remarked during the course of the evening that the most consistent proof that the affair had been neces- sary was its brevity. A gift of scholarship was shown by the fact that the approximately equal number of donors and Harvard boys gave through a whole meal together with the students of a rest being consumed.

Students Not Neurotic

We are interested in the words of the Student.

"Are we interested in the words of the Student..." This is an excellent idea, and it is to be hoped that we may be able to carry it out.

The student's voice is the voice of the people, and it is the voice of the future. We should be interested in what the student has to say, and we should encourage him to speak his mind.
