When the Federation was founded in Edinburg, Scotland, in 1890, it was thought to have a specific purpose the comprisings and propagating of the schools of health in the various countries. As a result, more than 31 nations have been founded, and a similar committee has been formed in each country to act as a medium of communication between the various nations in a central body. The Federation of International Health, which includes the International Health Council and the Union of the European Institutes, has been the most active in its work by individual countries, and has been the central combat of health before the World Health Organization by groups of scientists among the nations.

Two years ago the Federation organized the first International Conference of Health Education at the University of Michigan. At that time, the various countries were asked to send two representatives to an International Committee of the organization. The Federation, however, has never been able to get a representative of the United States to this committee because of the fact that the United States is a member of the League of Nations.
