COLLEGE DEBATERS TO FOLLOW ALONG THE TRAIL OF CAPTAIN COOK

BATES COLLEGE at Lewiston, Maine, has varsity athletic teams in all of the ordinary collegiate sports, but its greatest claim to fame is its debating team. This year this small Mountain College has more than held its own. In 1921 she sent to England the first intercollegiate team ever to cross the Atlantic. At an early date she is planning to send a team to the 1928 World's Peace Congress to be held in London. It is the policy of the College to build up the debating team as a sport which shall carry through on every basis. A team is not permitted to play just because it is interested in the college, but only if the college is interested in the team. The Bates men will take part in about twenty-five debates, and the event for which they are best prepared to compete is the "champion debate" of the "world." This is quite an achievement, yet in the past there has been something lacking in such representative citizens are raising a fund of $7,000 with the help of Newspapers of Portland, aided by a State Committee of representatives.
