Passing The Flock

The Cardinal and Gray hockey team had some real action yesterday morning when it had a scrimmage session with Norwich. The Vermont players were on their way to Providence to play Brown and envied themselves of the opportunity to get in a little practice.

The number of the weaknesses revealed in the Harvard game are still evident in the play. Cardinal and Gray hockey players and Coach Howard has a real worry on his hands. The Hanover team is captained by Miles Bultrill on the line with Dartmouth in the Springfield game. The Vermont players had some real action yesterday morning.

The Cardinal and Gray hockey team are working their way to Providence to meet their rival. With one victory and one defeat for the season's record to date, the Cardinal and Gray quintet goes into the Dartmouth game tonight a far superior outfit to the one that was nosed out by Brown last Saturday. The Hanover team in turn with the intention of securing revenge for the one-point setback that Coach McClintock's team suffered last year, and from all indications, tonight's game will be the greatest bat-

The audience will see a game full of action and excitement as the bleachers are packed to see a game full of action and excitement as the bleachers are packed. McCLINTOCK and Brockelman have started in, probably to allow the heavily-elected outside-captain to rest an ankle injury sustained in the last game. Coach McCarthy starts in, probably to allow the heavily-elected outside-captain to rest an ankle injury sustained in the last game. Coach McCarthy has spent most of his time preparing the team to lift the roof off the Hanover between halves. It is likely that they will play best in half time, which is set for 5 o'clock.

The following are the probable lineups for the two games, which is called for:

Go to Europe the American way and enjoy yourself

$177.50 and up, round trip

The time to plan your vacation trip to Europe is now. Demand for Tourist Third Cabin accommodations is so great each year that reservations should be made well in advance. Last year many thousands of students traveled on United States Liners this year that reservations should be made early even if you can't plan it.

These ships are so popular because they are American ships. Standards of living in America are the highest in the world and they are maintained on the Liner, George Washington, President Roosevelt, President Harding, Republic, and America.

Stereocasts are clear and dry, social balls, smoking rooms, and libraries are as comfortable as any that you can imagine. The cuisine is well known for its quality by all experienced travelers. Decks are wide and sunny. Best of all, passengers enjoy themselves because of the top-notch service of our British officers.

Write for descriptive folders giving complete information on the above-mentioned Liners.
