Pittsburgh Is No Longer Smokiest City in America

Boston Air Is Purest, According to Health Careful Investigation

Pittsburgh has at last lost its rank as the smokiest city in America as a result of a recent air pollution investigation carried out by the American Lung Association. The cities investigated were Boston, San Francisco, and Los Angeles. The investigation, according to Professor Bascom Paris, of the College of Public Health, was conducted by the Lung Association, that both St. Louis and Boston were found to be slightly better than Pittsburgh and that Boston is the cleanest of the three.

The number of dust particles per cubic meter in Boston was found to be as follows: St. Louis, 7; Boston, 6; San Francisco, 5; and Los Angeles, 4.

STAYING IN BED

Is all very queer and a little terrifying, and not a bit amusing. I beg to ask the management if they will please not have so much of this thing as will make us uncomfortable.

When fifty percent of the country's voting population stays away from the polls every election day, the political success of the county's voting population does the same thing, that failure stalks the very principles on which this government rests. What value if the future of this good government can the college man be if he throws the franchise?

We believe that if a quarter of a million vote wisely, especially by choosing the right granted her by the Constitution. Can this be said of the other 250,000 college men and women who equally share the right?

THE AXE ON HONOR SOCIETIES

"Such theory named honor societies like the Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Pi, Phi Kappa, Phi Eta Sigma, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Phi Beta Kappa, and Alpha Chi Omega are no longer so popular among college students as they were formerly. The administration of these societies has become more lenient, and the criteria for membership has been relaxed. This has resulted in a decrease in the number of students who join these honor societies."

PITTSBURGH IS NO LONGER SMOKIEST CITY IN AMERICA

As we see the movies.

METROPOLITAN

A story of the world's American war that has been the most fascinating of all: a war of the teapot diplomacy. The best known event, "The Peace of Paris," is the story of a man who was called upon to make a treaty between the United States and the United Kingdom. The man who did this was a diplomat named John Hay. The treaty made by Hay was an agreement between the two nations to cease all fighting and to establish a friendly relationship between them.

Many witty exhibits, some as old as history, are on view in the exhibition of the most modern type, keep the audience in a mood which very pleasantly connects...
