Aeronautical Lab. Gets 40 Foot Weather Tower

For the past few days, there have been seers of a tower over the year on the roof of the Aeronautical Building. And the purpose of the tower has been one of very great importance to ouraerospace project.

In order to carry out Professor Carl G. Rossby's plan of erecting a radio beacon for weather bureau work in the Hertelian region, it was necessary to have a fixed wind indicator to be used on future experiments.

The tower is to be made ready at a very flexible height. The type and records electrically recorded in the office.
