Canadian Movies Outline Means of Fire Protection

In addition to exhibiting the natural beauty of Ontario's forests, a series of fire fighting forest fires were exploited in the official motion picture show of the Province that was shown yesterday afternoon in Room 190. The film entitled "Sparks Time," a graphic story was told of that little known branch of Canada's National Forest Service, the forest protection. Contrary to popular belief, the forest fire is not as easy to control as the average person would think. The average cost of putting out a fire is approximately two cents an acre.
