Dr. J. O. Perrins, A. T. and T., to Give Practical Demonstration of New Development

Dr. J. O. Perrins of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company will present a practical demonstration of modern television in Room 10-250 at 8:00 o'clock Thursday, April 25. The demonstration will explain the complex of the Columbia Broadcasting System and the Columbia Radio Corporation's efforts to develop a practical television system. Dr. Perrins is a member of the Institute and has been working on the development of television for the past four years.

The lecture will be conducted in the Great Hall of the Institute on Thursday, April 25, at 8:00 o'clock. It will be open to the public and will be followed by a question and answer period. The lecture will last approximately one hour.

The lecture will begin with an introductory talk by Dr. Perrins, who will explain the basic principles of television and how they apply to the Columbia system. The lecture will then proceed to a demonstration of the television system, which will include a live broadcast from a remote location. The demonstration will be conducted in the Great Hall of the Institute and will be transmitted to the audience via a large screen.

After the demonstration, there will be a question and answer period, during which the audience will have an opportunity to ask questions of Dr. Perrins. The question and answer period will last approximately 30 minutes.

The lecture will conclude with a discussion of the future of television, including the possibilities for future developments in the field.

The lecture is open to the public and will be held in the Great Hall of the Institute. It will begin at 8:00 o'clock and will last approximately one hour. The lecture will be followed by a question and answer period, which will last approximately 30 minutes.

The lecture will be recorded and will be available for viewing on the Institute's website. The lecture will also be broadcast on the Institute's radio station, which can be tuned in on the Institute's website.

The lecture is sponsored by the Institute's Television Committee, which is made up of members of the Institute's faculty, students, and staff.

The lecture is free to attend and is open to the public. It is expected to attract a large audience, and seating will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.
