CREWS LEAVE FOR NEW YORK

On Saturday, the Engineers will row against the so-far invincible Columbia eights, on the Harlem River, in the last race of the season before the Varsity goes in training for the Poughkeepsie regatta. In the three races held this year, every Columbia crew has been victorious, having defeated Harvard, Princeton, and Brown. Columbia went over the Navy by three lengths in their last race, duplicating the feat of the Engineers the week previous, and since then have won every race, defeating the famous Princeton eight by four lengths in a regatta last Saturday.

Whether or not Richardson will race in the first heat on Saturday is still in question, as his complete recovery from his recent illness has been slow. Richardson, who is sick in the hospital, is expected to make a fine showing in Saturday's race. He rowed in Richardson's berth, and rowed an excellent race, and is expected to make the heat of the first race, and then make a fine showing in Saturday's race.
