The decision of the Interfraternity Conference to hold their next dance at Longwood Towers brings up again that oft-mentioned question, "Why is Walker never used for student affairs?" As the organization, representative of a considerable part of the men at the Institute, should refuse to consider holding the dance "on the campus" indicates a general feeling that Walker does not meet the requirements as a student clubhouse.

In discussing Interfraternity Dances at all, a number of important issues are involved. In the first place, there is a strong prejudice against them which has to be overcome. Their disapproval dating back to a "brawl" held at Alden Park Manor in 1936, the authorities have looked askance at the whole series of affairs. The dances have not been of such character as would arouse student enthusiasm—poor music and food, inadequate space, mismanagement and low general tone explain this feeling. To meet these difficulties the fraternity men are planning extensive improvements. Each fraternity will be allotted only about half as many tickets as last year. The price has been raised slightly, but refreshments are to be included.

Ladies of the Senior Directors and the Junior Associates of the Show. He explained the admission of the Junior Directors will be free.

The music will not evidence last year's mediocrity. One of the best ideas the Spectator has heard in a long time is this—"let the students do the work and plan the dance." This way the ladies will have a real feel of

The Tech Manager will go to the crew, decidedly a worthwhile activity, and promoting a more general use of Walker.
