The Lounger has done quite a bit of writing this week and the amount of copy in the paper is showing a steady increase. The editor can scarcely believe that he is in business for the spring term, when he had expected things to rest on his hands. However, the amount of work has not been too much of a strain as he can call upon the two old timers to help out in the future. The amount of news has been greater than expected and the editor feels that he has done his best to keep the paper up to date.

The Lounger had no opportunity to attend the meeting of the Boston Bar Association on Tuesday evening due to a prior engagement. However, the editor has been informed by a reliable source that the meeting was well attended and that the discussion was of a high order. The editor regrets that he was unable to attend and hopes to be able to report on the proceedings in a future issue.

The editor also wishes to welcome back to the Boston Bar Association the two old timers who have been away for some time. The editor feels that the addition of two old timers to the staff will help to keep the paper up to date and that the editor will be able to get a much better idea of what the members of the association are thinking.

The editor also wishes to express his thanks to the members of the association who have taken the trouble to write to him during the past week. The editor feels that these letters have been of great help to him and that he has been able to get a much better idea of what the members of the association are thinking.
