PROVED WORTH

A TRANSFORMED Walker Memorial greeted those who entered the Student Union on Friday evening. The transformation started before the event began, and continued throughout the evening with each succeeding attraction. The Walker Memorial was transformed from a large gymnasium into a dance hall, and then transformed back to its original state after the dance was over. The transformation was achieved by a group of students who worked tirelessly to ensure that the event was a success.

A SPOKEN Word

The transformation of the Walker Memorial was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the students who organized the event. The transformation process began with the cleaning and preparation of the gymnasium, followed by the decoration of the hall with streamers and balloons. The dance floor was then set up, and the lighting was adjusted to create a festive atmosphere.

A DANCE

The dance itself was a highlight of the evening, with music provided by the Alpha Tau Omega dance band. The dance floor was filled with students, and the music provided a perfect backdrop for dancing and socializing.

A FINALE

The transformation process was not complete until the dance was over, and the Walker Memorial was restored to its original state. The transformation was a symbol of the community that exists at MIT, and the pride that students take in their school.
