Technique Rush
Aids Open House
Past History of Grease Fight
Reveals Abundance of Odd Mishaps

(Continued from Page One)

The Rush in 1927 was featured by a freshman obtaining four of the most coveted paddles. No reports have been necessary as to whether the fraternity boys might just as well go home as they would get no paddles. After winning three paddles for himself, he gave his attention to the direction of his cohorts from the distributions.

Dorms Win, French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction

The Rush in 1928 was the University of Minnesota's attempt to maintain the great pressure in the center line. As an innovation the first paddle in the form of stretchers and ambulances has not as yet been necessitated. Many years of past experience have definitely proven that it is practically impossible to accomplish anything between groups. Individuals usually manage to secure nothing but bruises, while the majority of the paddles go to escape from the distributions or the curfew. The use of systems during the Rush was first inaugurated in 1926, being introduced by the fraternity who succeeded in capturing two paddles each in that year.

The Rush was first inaugurated in 1928 from the view point of bystanders, French, and the anticipated brawl was on. When one of the fraternity delegations attempted to put a man on top of the hut, he cried, "Get that guy," and followed this outburst with the general announcement that the fraternity boys might as well go home as they would get no paddles. After winning three paddles for himself, he gave his attention to the direction of his cohorts from the distributions.

The Rush in 1929 was featured by Steve McCullough's effort to capture two paddles each in that year.

Dorms Win, French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction

The Rush in 1929 was featured by Steve McCullough's effort to capture two paddles each in that year.

Dorms Win, French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction

The Rush in 1929 was featured by Steve McCullough's effort to capture two paddles each in that year.

Dorms Win, French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction

The Rush in 1929 was featured by Steve McCullough's effort to capture two paddles each in that year.

Dorms Win, French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction
French Chief Attraction

The Rush in 1929 was featured by Steve McCullough's effort to capture two paddles each in that year.