T. E. N. Appears On Sale Today Instead of April Voo Doo

By William C. Greene, Jr.

A gentleman is walking down a street in the middle of the city. Suddenly, he checks his direction, then turns and begins to walk in the opposite direction. He does this repeatedly for a few minutes, then stops and begins to walk in the same direction again. After walking in the same direction for a while, he turns around and begins to walk in the opposite direction once again. This continues for a few more minutes before he finally stops and starts walking forward, away from the original point he began his journey.
