JOHN M. CARMODY TELLS MEMBERS OF CORPORATION XV LENIN IS GREATER INFLUENCE DEAD THAN HE WAS ALIVE

Frontenac Manager Who Spent Summer in Russia Tells of His Impressions and Experiences; More than 200 in Attendance

speaking at the Corporation XV dinging meeting last Friday evening, Mr. Carmody, editor and publishing director of the "Factory and Industrial Management," an acknowledged authority on the Society of Industrial Engineers, and a member of the American Association of Russia Students, gave an interesting and entertaining account of the conditions in Russia as he saw them during his visit of three months last summer.

All existing records show that the ten years in which the present generation has been growing to manhood have been followed by what has been termed the Russian Revolution. This movement, he said, had made itself felt in a hundred ways, even in the United States, and it was not at all an easy matter to describe it in a short talk to the members of the Society.

"You may ask," he went on, "whether I observed during my trip any sign of the revolution. I certainly did. I saw it in every phase of Russian life. How I saw it, you will hear about in a moment, but I am better able to describe to you a few of the things that impressed me most.

The first thing that struck me was the national pride of the Russians. They were proud of their country, and it was evident that they were determined to make it a great nation. They were also very punctual, and the), time was much respected by everyone.

I also found that they were very disciplined and that they held to a rather rigid code of conduct. This was evident in their daily lives, and I think it was a good thing for them. It is a pity that we cannot learn from them.

The third thing that impressed me was the absence of crime. There was very little of it, and the police were very efficient. The people were all well-behaved and respectful.

The last thing that impressed me was the way in which they handled their food. They had a great deal of it, and they seemed to enjoy it very much. They were very fond of bread and fish, and they ate a great deal of it. I think it was a pity that we could not learn from them.

I believe that, if we could, we would all profit by it."

Norman Thomas Speaks at Meeting of M.I.T. Liberal Club

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Vice-President, who recently returned from a trip to Russia, spoke at a meeting of the M.I.T. Liberal Club last Friday evening. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Y.W.C.A. Liberal Club.

Mr. Thomas is a member of the Socialist Party and the leader of the socialist movement in America. He is a prolific writer and has written many books on socialism and other topics.

He spoke at many places on his recent tour of Russia and the countries of Eastern Europe, where he was met by enthusiastic crowds. His views on socialism and international relations were well received.

"In the face of the capitalist world," he said, "we must face the fact that the world is becoming more and more socialist. The great nations of the world are becoming socialist, and the small nations are becoming socialist. The world is becoming socialist, and we must face this fact.

"I believe that the socialist movement is the movement of the future. It is the movement of the world. We must face this fact, and we must prepare for it."

The meeting was well attended and the discussion was lively. The Club is planning to hold similar meetings in the future.
