With an entering field of over fifty men, the preliminary round consisted of eight heats, each containing five entrants, and the top three in each heat qualified for the finals. The winners of the first and second heats were Air and Marine, respectively, and the winners of the third and fourth were, in order, the Eastern Conference and the other team from the Air Force. The third place finishers of the two heats that contained the most top teams advanced, and the line-up for the finals was as follows:

First Heat:
1. Air
2. Marine
3. Eastern Conference
4. Other Team from Air Force
5. Third Place Finisher from Second Heat

Second Heat:
1. Air
2. Marine
3. Eastern Conference
4. Other Team from Air Force
5. Third Place Finisher from First Heat

The finals were contested on Monday evening, with the University of Colorado hosting. The game was played for the first time in the new gymnasium, which was officially dedicated earlier that day. Both teams entered the game with a perfect record of 29-0, and the crowd was electric.

The game started with a bang, as the University of Colorado stormed out of the gate, taking an early lead. However, Air and Marine gradually gained momentum, and by the end of the first half, the score was tied at 23-23. The University of Colorado had a slight lead at half-time, but Air and Marine took control in the second half, winning 66-56. The game was marked by strong performances from both teams, with the University of Colorado's guard, Anderson, leading the way with 26 points, while Air and Marine's forward, Thompson, had 24 points. The final game of the season was also the last home game for both teams, and the crowd was on their feet as they played their final game.

Final Score:
Air and Marine 66
University of Colorado 56

Record:
Air and Marine 30-1
University of Colorado 29-1

The University of Colorado played well throughout the season, with a strong defense and a balanced offense. The team was led by Anderson, who scored over 1000 points and was named the Most Valuable Player of the conference. Air and Marine, on the other hand, had a high-scoring forward in Thompson, who averaged over 20 points per game. The team was coached by Coach Johnson, who had been with the program for several years and had led them to several conference titles.

The game was played in front of a sold-out crowd, and the atmosphere was electric. Both teams played with great intensity, and the fans were on their feet throughout the game. The University of Colorado had the lead for most of the game, but Air and Marine fought back, and the game was at a dead heat in the final minutes. In the end, it was Air and Marine's experience and teamwork that made the difference, as they closed out the game with a strong finish.

The season was a success for both teams, and the fans were excited for the future. The University of Colorado had a strong team and could be a contender for the championship next season. Air and Marine, on the other hand, had a tough season, but they showed great improvement and could be a force to be reckoned with next year.

Post-Game Thoughts:
Coach Johnson was impressed with the University of Colorado's defense, saying, "Our defense was great tonight, and we were able to limit their scoring. The team played well together and were able to make big plays as a unit." Coach Anderson was grateful to the fans for their support, saying, "The fans were great tonight, and it was great to play in front of such a strong crowd. We played well as a team and were able to come out on top."
