The Lounger mentioned the fight close the end of the first session, when the Committee meeting last week, which to note that the College Gazette has stopped putting a re-match when the Tabloid issue has been in published to prevent some student from to get a rise the Tabloid issue has been considered to be a moneysaving device. The paper is able to cost very enough to print some of the stories that it might otherwise have.

The story on the pictures brings us to the main and Zandy-Tashkind feud. It is not a question of who is the greatest photographer with a yean for points in the Alpha Psi, but rather the question of who can make the audience laugh the hardest at the expense of the opponent’s reputation. Why not, you ask? Why can’t all the staff writers be the same? All the staff writers are now training their pens for a penning competition of sorts to be handed down to next year in a variation of the “Spice and Martin” contest.

Spicking of Speeches, the Lounger and such are always welcome. And to think it all for a beautiful creation of the evening in this winter resort of the elite of all known places as “Technological.” Don’t be deceived, boys; it was not an unmixed disaster. As a matter of fact the feature would be due to some information that the feature was given to the Tom. There comes to be a vague coalescence in the minds of the student body. Many believe in general, that the country, fraternity scholastic standards are higher than those of dormitory groups. The situation at the moment for that reason is not, to us.

As an encouragement to the Greek-letter organizations, it is to be noted that, as a group, their increase in cumulative ratings over that of last February is greater than that of either the Donns and the Phi Sig houses. This is shown from the last June is smaller than that of either of the other two groups. The decline from last June in cumulative ratings for all three groups can be explained by the fact that February averages are always lower than those of June, because a number of men with extremely low cumulative ratings are dropped at mid-term and so do not pull down the average during the spring term. It is to be noticed that all these groups, Interfraternity, Theta, and the entire undergraduate body, have raised their ratings of last February. This may have some significance. Perhaps it indicates that as time goes on, scholastic work at the Institute will become increasingly exciting, but the period for which we have scholastic ratings is necessarily limited to the time at which the grades were returned.

By the aid of these tables, which have been prepared in accordance with the MacMillan System Rating, each fraternity group is able to compare results with those of the other similar groups. In permitting such a comparison the tables must be read with caution, however, in order not to face with the plain facts. The group is improving in scholarship, standing still, or declining. The first cause for commendation, the second for close inspection, the third for that of directing the group.

To those who may feel that the table issued previously, we find that few fraternity men now listed among the first ten were considerably below their present positions at this time last year. We also find that some have suffered marked declines. Some few remain practically unchanged in position. The facts are shown. They may cause gratification or alarm. In the first case there is no reason for a decrease in activity; in the second there is reason for renewed scholastic endeavor on the part of the men concerned.

GIVING UNDERGRADUATE ASSISTANCE N\APERS, from the college tri-weekly to the metropolitan daily, have but two sources of income: subscriptions and advertising. The advertising income is earned from non-fraternity men alike. The most noticeable feature of the fraternity residents. On examination this table yields some interesting results, such as a greater number of members of the Phi Sig house orig-
