PARADOXICAL VOTES

Tomorrow the men of Technology are called upon to express an opinion regarding the desirability of electing for undergraduate offices those who are already in the class. This rule was inaugurated by a few men, but it soon received active support due to the fact that several of the offices are often filled by men who are not interested in the welfare of Technology expressed themselves as favoring any move that would make for greater student interest in elections. The reasons for the proposed change in the Undergraduate Association Constitution are that the election of those who are not interested in the character of the classes will in a large measure be determined by the students who are interested in the undergraduate offices. If a man has shown that he can do the work, it is the part of wisdom to see that the proper men are selected. Every undergraduate shall have a ballot in the "no" space tomorrow. If a two-thirds majority vote to continue, the movement for a change in the present system has arisen because of the stringent enforcement of a "no tenure" rule by the Corporation, which was intended as entertainment will probably not be continued. Let there be no mistake that the Corporation is in favor of the change, for the next day it does full justice; there was no petty steady pressure for a full house until nearly the end. Even those always pining to read deeper meanings into plays intended for amusement will probably be able to find some.

SUITS AND TOPCOATS

If you know just what you want in a suit or topcoat, come and get it. If your undecided, come to our floor and just say that you want a suit—that will be okay too, for we've plenty of fine suggestions for you.

The Smithson Town and Country is a four-piece suit, handy thing those knickers. Your preference in topcoats we have them in light greys and tans.

AS WE LIKE IT

The Good Fairy, a comedy by Mr. Will Hay, starring Helen Hayes.

Every so often, comes a play that is really a pretty good one. It is a comedy and, so it seems, quite as good an entertainment as it is possible, but also to praise it; such a play is this.

It is laid in Vienna, or some such place, and concerns a somewhat accurate and somewhat sympathetic, somewhat idealized, somewhat caricatured and somewhat pleasant story of the adventures of a lawyer; when pressed for the name of his family, he merely says, "Hayes." It is a good play, one that holds an audience, a good one to telegraph book. Miss Hayes is sympathetic in the part, which really deserves favorable criticism. Walter Connolly also gives an excellent portrayal as the middle-aged lawyer whose name was changed, and the rest of the cast is no less capable.
