ALLIGATORS START SEASON TOMORROW

Technology's unofficial baseball representative, the Alligators, will swing into action tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, meeting the Boston University Jaycees at Coop Field. The team has not practiced together very much as yet, but the intervarsity games have afforded a fair amount of preparation. Hall, of the Seniors' interclass team, has been selected to start on the mound, with Walsh receiving.

Tomorrow's starting lineup is as follows: Coffey, cf; Johnson, 3b; Walsh, r; Smith, il; Wall, 2b; Wehneltter or Newman, st; Lerner, cy; Hayden, 1b; Hall, p. The squad seems well fortified with threats of promise in Leslie, Newman, Jackson, and Coon.

Manager William Schneider '32 has several other contacts in view, but these definite dates have not yet been decided. Teams from Northeastern, Tufts, and Wentworth Institute will be included.

Class Game in Tie

Wednesday's interclass game between the Seniors and the Sophomores resulted in a 9-9 tie at the end of six innings, when the darkness put it to an end.

It's a pipe to come through the large end of the horn, even in a year like this—if a man will only buy when the saving's good.

You need a Spring overcoat (otherwise the lightweight coat you need off and on in all seasons).

You see a Rogers Coat Sale of some broken lots of their finest qualities.

You step right in and out with a $12, $17, $23, $27 or $32 saving in your pocket. Were $40 to $60-
