FACULTY CLUB TO SEE FIRST NIGHT

Opening Performance of John Galsworthy's "Pigeon"

FOR FACULTY

In pursuance of its policy of encouraging support of student activities, the Faculty Club of the Institute has bought all tickets for the "first night" of the coming Dramashop production of "Pigeon" of John Galsworthy. All of the members of the faculty club and their guests may obtain them for seventy-five cents. The tickets are being sold by the Faculty Club treasury.

John Galsworthy, recently awarded the Nobel Prize for 1932, is considered an authority on his plays, since it deals with the world-wide problem of charity and its administration, and treats it in a way which is at once humorous and sympathetic. Galsworthy is extremely popular in England, "The Pigeon" is the most timely of his plays, since it deals with the world-wide problem of charity and its administration, and is one which is at once humorous and sympathetic. Galsworthy is extremely popular in England.

The Text claims that the human tendency to make for higher academic standing. The professor probably means that the tendency to make for higher academic standing. The professor probably means that the tendency to make for higher academic standing. The professor probably means that the tendency to make for higher academic standing.

More Co-eds Are Needed, Says Professor Rogers

The usual second-year English class. The time was somewhere after ten and before eleven. The day was Tuesday, and the instructor was the well-known Professor Robert E. Rogers. An air of expectancy filled the room. In the middle of a notion discussion of history, the eminent professor came right out with the statement that the male undergraduates who were absent from class would be much better off if the number of the male students attending the lectures increased. Just what are we to make of that?

T.C.A. Notes

Edward Glazier, '33, has been appointed assistant director of the Dramashop for the '37-'38 season. He will be in charge of all operations of the Dramashop under the direction of the male undergraduates of the Dramashop, and will have temporary charge of the work of the Dramashop in the absence of the male undergraduates. He will have temporary charge of the work of the Dramashop in the absence of the male undergraduates. He will have temporary charge of the work of the Dramashop in the absence of the male undergraduates. He will have temporary charge of the work of the Dramashop in the absence of the male undergraduates.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

EXPERT GLASSBI OWER DEMONSTRATES SKILL

(Continued from page one)

Distles is using a movie camera as a scouting aid for his boxers this winter. Pictures of several practice sessions have been taken, and will be studied by the players in an effort to discover their faults. The squad in turnout out exasperated with Distles is working hard in preparation for the match with B. U. next week.

The Sports Desk

We have had an unusual number of fellow students lately talking about the chances of the Tech's ever having a varsity football team. Most of these students knew that such a team would probably be started, and offered California Tech, Carnegie Tech, and other schools with similar teams, which are better known and more influential, but they all thought that even the work at the Institute did not take good enough time that a football team was impossible. Our own ideas on the subject are neutral; there's much to be said for either side, and we wonder what the footballers' opinion is.

Judging by the recent cold spell, it looks as though the tennis tournament will never be finished. Only the hardiest remain, between Frank Keener and Fred Found, seeded first and second respectively, if they decide to play it off, we're willing to bet they won't be wearing white shirts.

P. T. McCarthy's charges are shaping up pretty well for the opening game a week from this Saturday. Bob McEwan and Red Sheen seem to be proving equal to the task of filling Harry Johnson's place at center, and Tom Shaughnessy and Joe Oldham seem to be doing fine work in evening mates for Capt. Barden at guard.

Some time ago a petition was circulated among the members of the Dramashop for the establishment of a Dramashop tennis tournament to be held each Saturday. The petition was presented to the Dramashop officers, and it was decided to allow the team sports to get in practice for the tennis tournament, but that they got more to come out, especially the players. Well, we didn't realize this when we thought we were getting the best staff, but...