Commercial Processes Practised In Fire Metallurgy Laboratory

Models of Commercial Furnaces Used For Demonstrating Fire Refining

The basement of Building 8 contains a laboratory in which several students are accustomed. It is in that room that most of these processes are carried out on a small scale. The laboratory, located by Professor Richards, was originally in the basement of Rogers Building, and was one of the first installations of its kind in the country. Its purpose is to demonstrate one-stage and two-stage refining of various metals.

Professor C. H. Hayward, who is in charge of this work, made a survey of the work which goes on here, and of the work which is done in the commercial production of certain metals. He showed films of the working of a blast furnace, and the processes followed in the production of certain metals.

TheLounger feels moved to poetry,

I hear the call of the wild

As the weather grows colder,

And the leaves begin to fall

The Lounger feels moved to poetry,

I hear the call of the wild

As the weather grows colder,

And the leaves begin to fall

The Lounger feels moved to poetry,

I hear the call of the wild

As the weather grows colder,
