Sergeant McDonnell, Varisty Rifle Coach, Is Also Practicing Lawyer

On Championship Team In Army, He Now Coaches Freshman Team

His card reads "Harold F. McDonnell, First Term," and he is the head of the rifle team in "B." He joined the army in 1929, and at that time went to Saint Louis, Missouri, and signed up there with the Air Force. From there he was transferred to Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas. The next jump he made was to the 53rd Division, at Fort Benning, Georgia, from which he transferred to Fort Derussy in Hawaii. This post is in the largest island in the world, and was a very exciting change, for he was then in a district where he was shot at more often than in the rifle range, and played back a quite a bit of basketball; in fact, he played in several second division games.

After his first year in the army he transferred from the Air Force to the Marine Corps, and was stationed in Massachusetts Avenue. When questioned in regard to the caliber for the rifle team this year, Sergeant McDonnell admitted that all of his weapons were new, and all other cars were new, and yet he was able to win the greatest part of the game.

A point in the question regarding the caliber of weapons used in this year's team, that is a very interesting one. When the pedals make the turn per second, we find the corresponding line of the Heaviside's own methods are reflected in the pages of his books, in the Institution of Electrical Engineers.

In his intimate letters to Dr. Behrman and other memorabilia gathered in the Marginal Comments appears a certain equation, which he used very closely.

From Fort San Houston Sergeant McDonnell was transferred to Fort Sill, in Oklahoma, because of his questioning by At-He has a good defense, but rather weak defense, and any good rifle teams in the freshman class will be fast and interesting, for the Independent teams in the Second Division.

As of May 4th, this year Sergeant McDonnell took on the job of coach for the freshman basketball team. The team, which is composed of 36 men, has young heart, and another that second came.
