UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

Students in journalism last semester wrote enough material to fill 500 columns in the average newspaper.

POSITIONS AS COXSWAINS ON THE FRESHMAN TEAM THIS SPRING ARE OPEN TO EVERYONE. The University of Wisconsin has a fine reputation for training good boatmen and for this reason a large number of young men have applied for the positions. If you have had experience in the art of handling a vessel, you are invited to call at the boat house.

It was the summer of 1915 when a group of five students formed the University Boat Club. The first boat was a dandy, a second and a third were added, and the club became a reality. The first season was a success in every way. The club purchased its first boat in the fall of 1916. The vessel was well built and proved itself a success. The following year the boat was sold to sponsors in Elmwood, Wisconsin, where it is still used on the lakes.

The club has a fine tradition of success, with a membership of 400 members and 200 regular members. The fleet of vessels consists of a 30-foot, a 28-foot, and a 20-foot boat. The 30-foot boat is used for the varsity team, the 28-foot for the junior team, and the 20-foot for the freshman team.

Bruce Brown Team in Hanging Gym; Three Men Still Here For Last Time

In the last home match of the sea- son, Technology's capacity and Fred- erick University's junior was defeated by a score of 20 to 0. The Frederi- king team, which had been driven out of the competition by a score of 20 to 0, played a brilliant game. The university's junior was victorious on the 20th of April against the Bruin first-year men, with the vari- ous matches following.

Three varsity men will be on action on the home court for the last time. They are Captain Herman Sheas, 24-pound, Neil W. Smirk, 24-year-old, and George Kersley, 24-year-old, all of whom will graduate this June. Each of these men has been active in the sport from his freshman year on, and their loss will probably be felt next year.

With a record of three victories and two draws, the freshman team, and their loss probably will be felt next year.
