Regale Crown From Skillman Who Defeated Him for the Title

CAME TO TECH IN 1929
Jack Summers, squash coach at Technology, won his fourth national professional squash match title in the National Professional Squash Association in November, giving him an eighteen-month unbeaten streak. It was the first time in nineteen years that a man other than Elmer Vaughan had defeated him in a major competition. Vaughan, who has been defeated only once by Jack in two years, was the last victim of his unbeaten streak. Vaughan, who has been defeated only once by Jack in two years, was the last victim of his unbeaten streak.

The victory was a result of an injury sustained by Vaughan during the game. He was unable to return to the court and was forced to retire from the match. The final score was 11-9, 9-11, 11-9, 11-9, with Jack winning in four games.

The victory is the third straight for Jack, who has won the past two national titles. He is the first man to win three consecutive titles in professional squash.

Jack had a hard time securing the title, as he was challenged by several skilled opponents. However, his experience and skill allowed him to overcome the challenges and secure the victory.

The win solidifies Jack's position as one of the top professional squash players in the world. He has now won more titles than any other player in the history of the sport.

Jack's victory was celebrated by the squash community, and he was immediately called upon to defend his title in future tournaments. He is expected to continue his winning streak and maintain his dominant position in the sport.

The win was also a significant moment for the squash community, as it demonstrated the strength and depth of talent in the sport. The victory has set a high standard for future tournaments, and it is expected that the competition will only intensify in the coming years.
