Bell Will Defend Title in New York

Hedlund's Greatest Sprinter to Race in National Championship

Technology's greatest sprinter, Richard Bell, will run his last race on the track this season on Tuesday, May 3, at the New York Athletic Club meet, New York City. Bell will not enter the Olympic trials this year, which he won last year, and he is expected to run in the New York meet which he won last year and which is considered one of the most important meets of the season.

Bell has been a sensation since he entered Technology in 1931 and he has developed into a world-class runner. In his first year he broke the American college record in the 100-yard dash and 199-yard dash with times of 10.8 and 20.4 respectively. In his second year he broke the American record in the 200-yard dash with a time of 21.3. In his third year he broke the American record in the 40-yard dash with a time of 4.6. In his fourth year he broke the American record in the 100-yard dash with a time of 9.6.

Perfect Form. Bell has been working out for the last three weeks preparing for the New York meet. He has been working with his coach, Walter Relis, who is a former Olympic sprinter. Bell has been working on his form and technique, which has been his weak point.

Relis, Bell's coach, spoke to the students in the Physical Education Department of Technology on Wednesday. He explained the importance of form and technique in sprinting. He also spoke about the importance of rest and recovery.

The New York meet will be a great test for Bell. He will be facing some of the best sprinters in the country. He is expected to break the American record in the 100-yard dash, which is currently held by Bell.
