The new contestants, much more evenly matched, rolled about on the floor in extremely undignified positions, much to the dismay of those older sisters who have been trying to teach us to be ladies. However, there was none of the hitting, kicking, and clawing that is usually characteristic of feminine encounters. At first the fight went in favor of the Sophomore but eventually the Freshman, with a great effort, pinned the struggling Sophomore to the floor. However, when the disapproval of the more experienced and well-trained seniors became quite too apparent both the freshman and Sophomore were badly bruised and humiliated, discontinued the charivari.

From the onset of the Freshwoman's team, we had no very original thoughts on the subject, and said that even if he did not consider them of interest. "After all," he said, "there is nothing very startling I can say." He did mention, however, that he is enjoying himself very much. The most interesting part of his work, he feels, and the most important, is the personal contacts made with the students, and the opportunity to contact students from a different part of the country from the one in which he has been accustomed adds much to his enjoyment.

The environment of Cambridge is not new to him. After he graduated from Yale in 1929 he took his master's degree at Harvard, and lived 3 years in Cambridge. His teaching assignments have been in many different sections of the country. Ohio State, Columbia, Miami University, and Oxford, Ohio, as well as Hoboken and Cambridge, have claimed him for a time. He lives at present with his wife just across the river on Arlington Street.

---

Glove Fight Mixup

A group of combative demonstrations the approved chivalric method of evading a glove from a recalcitrant opponent.

---

EXCHANGE PROFESSOR FIFE GIVES OPINIONS ON LIFE OF TEACHER

His Had Varied Experience At Ohio State and Miami University

"Yes, and if those were the last words I heard as I stopped outside the office of Professor John P. Fife. The exchange professor from Stevens Tech, Professor Fife, has, for this year, swapped places with Professor William Grove of Technology's English Department. It seemed strange for a member of the faculty to speak to an undergraduate, but then, Professor Fife is not so recent with his students. Perhaps that is the reason he is already as well-liked. Professor Fife thinks highly of the idea of occasionally exchanging places with someone in a different university. It keeps him out of a rut, he claims, and adds much interest to his work. He has been teaching English at Stevens for the past five years, and five years in instruction without a change of scene is conducive to lethargy. Besides, the opportunity to compare the methods of teaching there and here is invaluable, he continued.

At Stevens, he said, the English department has expanded into the Department of Humanities, which includes those studies classified as English Literature. Conference hours at Stevens are held from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. each morning. The exchange professor from Stevens, he said, had written of the experience.

---

LEARY WILL ADDRESS CORPORATION XV ON INDUSTRIAL POisons

Business Society Plans Series Of Informal Addresses By Famous Men

Dr. Timothy Leary, the medical director and examiner for the Boston Southern District, will give a thirty minute talk at 5:00 o'clock Wednesday in Room 1400 on his experiences with industrial poisons in the light of a lifetime of study in this connection. It is the first of a series of informal addresses by men of established reputation in the fields of science and business under the auspices of Corporation XV.

Dr. Leary's contact for many years has been the Freshman and Sophomore co-eds. The crisis was precipitated by the Freshmen and Sophomores co-eds was a fitting match between the Freshmen and Sophomore co-eds was a fitting match between the Freshmen and Sophomore co-eds.

---

LEARY'S ADDRESS

The crisis was precipitated by the Freshmen and Sophomores co-eds was a fitting match between the Freshmen and Sophomore co-eds.