Marriage or a career? Which would you choose? Most girls, today, do not consider these choices. They have not yet received such training. Many of them think that marriage and career are not compatible. They may feel that they cannot have a career and still be a good wife and mother. Others may feel that they cannot have a career and still be happy. Some girls may feel that they cannot have a career and still be in control of their lives.

There are many reasons why girls may feel this way. Some girls may feel that they cannot have a career and still be a good wife and mother because they believe that a career will take away from their family responsibilities. Others may feel that they cannot have a career and still be happy because they believe that a career will take away from their personal time. Still others may feel that they cannot have a career and still be in control of their lives because they believe that a career will take away from their personal freedom.

However, there are also many reasons why girls may feel that they can have a career and still be a good wife and mother, happy, and in control of their lives. For example, there are many careers that are not time-consuming and that do not interfere with a girl's family responsibilities. There are also many careers that are not stressful and that do not take away from a girl's personal time. And there are many careers that allow a girl to be in control of her own life.

The decision of whether to marry or have a career is a personal one. It depends on a girl's own goals, desires, and values. It also depends on the society in which she lives. In some societies, girls are expected to marry and have children. In other societies, girls are expected to have a career. In still other societies, girls are expected to have both a career and a family.

Marriage or a career? Which would you choose? It is a question that each girl must answer for herself.
