M.I.T. To Have Varsity Baseball Team

First Inside Practice Today

"If enough spirit and interest are shown in baseball this year and next, you can reasonably expect to see the annual full varsity competition at Tech Nevermore," baseball enthusiasts were told at a mass meeting yesterday.

At the meeting, after the interclass plans had been outlined by Constant S. Birdsall, '38, the schedule for an independent Tech varsity team was announced by Lt. Arthur F. Merewether, '36, at 530 Beacon Street, Boston.

Five games are listed, the first with the Lowell Textile School varsity on April 7. Two games are scheduled with the Harvard junior varsity, one each with the Northeastern and Wentworth varsities.

Managers Elected

The managers for the various classes were appointed at the meeting as follows:

Junior Class: Donald W. Fowler, '37, and John G. Burke, '38.
Senior Class: Charles W. Merrow, '36, and John G. Earle, '38.

These men are interested in baseball and are destined to be baseball managers in the future.

The first time in many years that enough interest has been shown in the game, the baseball team is scheduled to start playing outside games before the start of the season. Last year only five games were played and of these the Junior varsity beat the Sophomore varsity by a single point, 19-18.

The interclass plans had been outlined with the consent of the administration.
