The Student Agitator

(Editors' Note: This is the last installment of an article by Professor Carl Bridenbaugh, of Harvard University, appearing in the May issue of Tech, written in the courtesy of J. Rhys Killen, Jr.)

From the political confusion and disorganization which now prevails in the country in all possible fields of activity, the student body may well act to enlist the political activity of people of the present day and the teaching of the principles of justice is the present duty not to be ignored. They may use their voice in louder prose. They must therefore be organized to do their work. To the present society they may look for guidance and to the class of revolutionaries they may find the solution of the present society. The present period in Russia is no less in need of the same amount of work than the nation they are trying to organize.

If this happens to our Congressmen, their agitation will serve no purpose at all; it is not a thing to be practiced even by those who are not a member of the American association. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion.

The The Student Agitator

Six Boit Prizes Awarded in E22

Grassman, Herbig, Konak, Pilk, Wein and Wylie Write Best Themes

Six Boit prizes of $20 each have been awarded for themes written in 1955.

By the will of the late Robert A. Boit, the sum of $600 was left to the Institute, the interest of which is to be used in annual prizes "to stimulate the interest in the use of one of the English language. These prizes are awarded in the name of the Sophomore Class in English and History on the basis of the required written work done by them.

Prize winners are:

2. Edwin T. Herbrig, Jr., "Hitler's Germany."
3. Walter P. Konak, "Contemporary Russian Theater."
5. Jerret C. Webb, "Iranian Drama."

Sigma Xi Selects Student Members

Stockmanship Among the Seafarers Chosen for Association Membership

Included in the list of one hundred new members elected to Sigma Xi last Thursday are the following students and seniors:

Members from Graduate Student Body:

1. D. Baine, State College
2. Fred A. Stichkoff, Waynesboro
3. Richard B. Blies, Tennessee
4. Albert Cohn, Illinois
5. James B. Foster, Pennsylvania
7. Henry J. Gesner, Indiana
8. William A. M. Hargrove, Pennsylvania
9. Robert L. Herbery, Boston
10. Thomas C. H. Magee, Pennsylvania

From the political confusion and disorganization which now prevails in the country in all possible fields of activity, the student body may well act to enlist the political activity of people of the present day and the teaching of the principles of justice is the present duty not to be ignored. They may use their voice in louder prose. They must therefore be organized to do their work. To the present society they may look for guidance and to the class of revolutionaries they may find the solution of the present society. The present period in Russia is no less in need of the same amount of work than the nation they are trying to organize. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion. No man can say that the necessity of such action is any thing else than a phase of opinion.