The gift was desirable to all and necessary to some, that the price this year be reduced. As a result we are offering the Prom for seven dollars, which is lower than it has been in the past few years and $2.50 lower than last year. The reduction is in price to reflect the reduction of a lower-priced orchestra. The one who signed and brought the bands was best known, has been so successful of late that he is able to pay our money for us in the orchestra as the Dorsal Brothers and Glen Grogan have played for us.

The new low price includes the customary fire ballroom and a midnight dinner. All the outstanding points of a popular dance forms are included in this year's Prom.

It is pleasing to see that Juniors, and the few others who have signed up, are supporting their Prom and that, in spite of a few disappointments they have had in regard to the type of orchestra, they are making it a point to get out of the Prom their share of enjoyment and good fellowship.

STOP, YOU FIND,
OH, WELL FIRE

DRAPIING the rag, bone, and hank of hair from Walker to the nearest reaches of Building 3 is in itself an ornamental not to be, contented with too much pleasure; much less climbing three flights of stairs to have to throw the weary carcass into wooden seats reminiscent of the instruction reaches the rupturing lead of endurance. For there is a laurel wreath waiting for the designer of these chivy chairs in Boon 3. Just the fit of it for all pipes, such as to presuppose flatness of the human body means where it would come in contact with the back. However, the crowning achievement of a mind obvious intent on comfort, is the book rest, and it has won the Everybody's Award for most pleasant chair in the line. The designer was not satisfied to make this the smallest book rest in the world. It is also the most portable, such as to be stored away in the arm of an armchair or a couch. For, as the chair of a man who has made an all-time record of reading in a hair under 28. 21 1/2. For some time this has been used as a form of diversion whenever the lecture has lapsed.

It has been quite an interesting study for us all to attempt to trace back what was in the originator's mind when, for example, he made a chair between two pairs of legs, to allow for the legs of only one person. Probably this was to encourage as discouraging an attitude, to make him incapable of study, and so on, with the designers, who, it is thought, will be devoted to the various activities among the scholars of the specialist and the engineer.

The influence of art as it is sure to be presented in the near future should be taken by the young scholar as his cue to alter this course so as to include the proper amount of cultural studies and at least one substantial, worth while, outside activity.

With the changes in qualifications for engineering professions, should naturally come changes in the curricula of engineering schools and colleges. The policy has been for as long a branch of science or engineering almost to the exclusion of language, history, and other cultural subjects. It is evident that the influx of these factors on employment of college graduates is likely to have a pronounced effect on the training of the specialists among the qualifications of the student and the engineer.
