GRIPES AND GRIPIES

"GEE! That is the biggest subject in the Institute. Something ought to be done about it!" How often is anything "done about it?"

Time after time such criticisms are voiced, and passed on by the grapevine telegraph, with no action to be observed.

Usually "gripes" are nothing but the culmination of many discordant events—a sleepless awakening, an ill-chosen breakfast, an unprepared class, and a quiz you flunked. All of which are, of course, the result of one's own lack of preparation and efficiency. But time after time such criticisms are voiced, and passed on by the grapevine telegraph, with no action to be observed.

GRIPES AND GRIPIES

"GEE! That is the biggest subject in the Institute. Something ought to be done about it!" How often is anything "done about it?"

Time after time such criticisms are voiced, and passed on by the grapevine telegraph, with no action to be observed.

Usually "gripes" are nothing but the culmination of many discordant events—a sleepless awakening, an ill-chosen breakfast, an unprepared class, and a quiz you flunked. All of which are, of course, the result of one's own lack of preparation and efficiency. But time after time such criticisms are voiced, and passed on by the grapevine telegraph, with no action to be observed.