and four sophomores saw action besides the seniors. Bemis Kuchmaker led the underclassmen by taking both of his epee bouts, Emilie Malkin led in the saber, and the hf, and Charles Wiener was victorious in three out of four of his bouts. With three men in the matches and with Shahin, Gebiler, Badayr, and appeal up on the court freshmen the chance for a good team again next year look very bright.

The varsity team travels down to New York this coming weekend to meet St. Johns at Brooklyn on Friday afternoon and Columbia at New York on Saturday afternoon. With the team in such good form the chances of defeating St. Johns are very good, while the chances of turning in a victory over Columbia are not as good as Columbia ranks as one of the outstanding fencing teams in the entire country.

The season for the change was explained by John J. Wallace, '28, president of the Union meeting committee, as a desire to "hear a meeting on the subject of neutrality before such discussion becomes obsolete." He explained that the insistence of war in Europe made the subject of American neutrality of prime importance and that an approach to the problem by way of a peace meeting like that of last year was of little avail.

that in the coffin for an unknown disposal.

This procedure was originated by the class of 1935 at their dance at which three hundred couples attended. Professor Green delivered the eulogy on that occasion also.
