Dining Service

Editor, The Tech: It was growing to learn of the comfortable and pleasant atmosphere that a contributor to the Open Forum of last Tuesday. His article, as pleasantly written, illustrates an attitude of typal that small personent.

In the first place, his complaints about the quality of the food and services is a reflection of his product of his disinterest. Everyone knows that Walker purchases only first grade commodities, and premieres that which is accepted by the present genius of their chief. Secondly, as this fellow will bewail, the area is pat a pie for the apiric purpose of preventing the wanted use of their facilities. And you can be certain of that same common sense would not expect to make substitutions in a specific, for this definition purposes.

Finally, how can anyone argue a protest against the prices of Walker Dining Services? The prices are below the average of all Boston. It's remarkable when one considers that the Walker Memorial, the Walker Dining Service has done well to end up with the year only a few thousand dollars in the red.

Therefore, let this dissenter still his voice. Students, who is he to say we do not have proper advertising, is he to ask for it? It is fairly evident that the entire situation as presented by advertising, is a WELLCAPTED PATRON.

Editor's Note: The T. C. A. is considering revival of the Tech-In-Turkey project, and would like to determine the interest in the matter.

The following statement, while obviously favoring the project, will give students an idea of the events that transpired. The Tech will be pleased to receive opinions and comments on the project.

Tech-In-Turkey

By Dorothy Walsh, President, Technology Christian Association

The T. C. A. is considering for reinstatement the Tech-In-Turkey project. The program, which temporarily abandoned, because of lack of funds, is very well received and it was that we were forced at that time to discontinue the program, and the administration of Robert College, Istanbul (Constantinople) by Turkey, expressed regret that the action was necessary.

Recently Dr. Walter L. Wright, Jr., who is president of the college, visited Technology and urged that the arrangement be revived. At the last meeting of the T. C. A. a consideration of this scheme was unanimously approved. Before taking definite action, however, it was consented to consult a foreign country to determine the feeling of the student body.

The project was initiated by Mr. Clark shortly after Dr. Gates, who was then president of Robert College, visited Technology and voiced a need for such a scheme. It was decided in 1932 the Tech-In-Turkey program was in operation and the students and faculty, both here and in Turkey, delighted in the philatelic correspondences from our representatives were frequently published in the columns of The Tech, telling of the various happenings and adventures.

Under the system as it operated, a senior in Civil, Mechanical or Electrical Engineering was chosen each May to spend the year following his graduation as an assistant member of the staff at Robert College. His transportation and a moderate salary for his services there were paid by the School of Fine and Graphic Arts and board were provided by Robert College.

The virtues of the scheme are numerous. First, it is excellent in the form of cooperation it provides to buy he will buy even though he later discovers the price is not so very low after all. And of course most advertising is designed— and very cleverly—to give a false impression of quality to the consumer. In the mean-while, the consumer who has too much faith in advertising will be benefited—benefit-
