Burden (Continued from Page 1) who would bring about the development of industries, the wise utilization of natural resources and the creation of a better environment, transportation, communication and public services throughout the country. The need for such men to develop and operate the physical plant of the country is so diminished, and it will continue to be the business of the Institute’s program of education and research.

"The country, however, is becoming increasingly faced with human problems, many of which are closely related to technological developments. The engineer, architect, and artist have been so successful in the latter field... that they realize the need of increasing attention to two aspects of the training of their successors. The first is development of a high sense of responsibility and understanding of social matters... Second is the development of those spiritual qualities that bring permanent satisfaction in living.

... the Dean of Humanities has been appointed to consolidate the work in this important field and to assure the most fruitful attention to this aspect of the institute’s curriculum.”

Dean Burdell, in addition to his activities in the Department of Economics and Social Science, is chairman of the National Committee on Instruction and Study; in which capacity he was created early this year, and it is special advisory to the Administrative section of the Federal Housing Administration for the New England Region. Last season Dean Burdell served as special technical advisor to the State Planning Board of Massachusetts during the development of a series of studies on Zoning Administration.

sent neutrality policy of the United States, he said that power to declare war should be prevented from influencing the legislative body.

At the end of the meeting, a resolution was adopted condemning the Hill-Shoppen Hill, known as "the Industrial Mobilization Plan." The resolution stated that the bill would establish a dictatorship over the labor and farmers of the United States whenever the President declares a state of "national emergency," and asked for its rejection by Congress.

The meeting was sponsored by the Greater Boston Peace Strike which was included, among others, the following organizations: American League Against War and Fascism, American Student Union, American Youth Congress, Community Church Youth Group, League of Nations Association, Massachusetts Progressive Committee, National Student Federation of America, and the Student Christian Movement.

Today's the day.

WOW!... says Al Schacht

Listen to Chesterfield's Daily Broadcasts of Big League Baseball Scores... 6-65 E.S.T.

COLUMBIA STATIONS

"Come on" the bleachers roared..."Swat 'em out!"

As the big leaguers swing into action watch those Chesterfield packages pop out of the pockets.

There's big league pleasure for you... everything you want in a cigarette.

A homer if there ever was one... all the way 'round the circuit for mildness and better taste... with an aroma and flavor that connects every time.
